Data Protection

A1 Lettings holds personal information such as names, addresses, email addresses and telephone numbers as well as having access to bank account details.

We are committed to maintaining the privacy of this information in compliance with the UK Data Protection Act 1998 and, as from 25th May 2018, to comply with the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR). We do not share this data with any external organisation without your express permission

The new GDPR legislation does not change the type of information we hold about you but we now need to advise you that we hold this information and use it to fulfil our obligations as a service provider to you.

You can request to review the data we hold about you at any time by contacting our administration manager.
